Hello and welcome to your Spring/Summer issue!

The last six months have continued to present us with challenges, not least of all being the weather. This winter has been extremely wet and led to hundreds of acres of our grazing land becoming waterlogged and temporarily unusable for our rescued equines to live on.

We know we were not alone in these challenges and recognise how hard it has been for so many. With this at the forefront of our minds, we have been working harder than ever to support not only our animals, but horse owners in the community when they need us.

In addition to the weather, we continue to be concerned about the impact of the cost-of-living crisis on the horse owning community. Thankfully, our reputation for providing non-judgemental support has enabled us to work closely with hundreds of horse owners, providing them with knowledge and guidance to continue caring for their horses that mean so much to them. Should you or anyone in your community need help or advice with the care of an equine, please do reach out to us.

We understand high living costs impact us all and as such, we're hugely grateful for your ongoing support, all of which helps us to care for even more horses in need. Please do take the time to read the story on page 12 about mother and son, Snow Bunting and Puffin; the work we do to help equines like these is mainly funded by gifts left in Wills from our generous supporters.

The stories in this issue show where your help has made such a difference to the lives of many horses in need. On behalf of the hundreds of equines we care for every single day, thank you.

WHEN THE FLOOD GATES OPENED

Unprecedented storms and rain brought added pressures to the day to day running of Bransby Horses during the last few months of 2023 and start of 2024.

At the height of the floods, over 40 per cent of our vital grazing land was under water – the equivalent of more than 250 football pitches.

It began on the morning of October 20th when we received a two-hour warning from the Environment Agency to say they would need to deliberately flood some of our grazing land to prevent further flooding in Lincoln.

We immediately removed more than 70 horses from the fields that would be affected and another 30 were moved to safety over the weekend after the floodgates were opened.

We understand the Environment Agency's need to reduce flooding in Lincoln by using our grazing land as flood plains, but sadly we receive no funding or compensation for this.

The impact of the flooding has brought additional costs at an already difficult economic time. We have

Exclusive drone footage by @canoninthecountry shows how badly our fields were affected in the village of Bransby

The impact of the flooding has brought additional costs at an already difficult economic time

Our Barlings site was also affected

however, been overwhelmed by the kindness and compassion of our wonderful supporters like you, who have offered to help or donated to the charity.

Both of our Lincolnshire sites received further flood warnings throughout the winter months, whilst the equines we'd displaced in October were still living in temporary accommodation. Having exhausted our winter grazing, we had to use fields originally being saved for the summer months.

With the loss of some of our summer fields in December and repeat floods earlier this year, there has been a significant impact on our summer grazing with all remaining fields now being used for our newly affected equines.

Waterlogged and saturated fields, combined with continued rainfall, has meant a very wet start to the year. The extent of additional costs incurred is likely to be thousands of pounds. Until the fields can be assessed following a prolonged period of dry weather, we won't know the full effect of this stormy start to 2024.

Simply the best NEW START FOR ABANDONED PONY

A pony found tied to the front gates of an industrial site unit in Doncaster is doing well, now he is safe in our care.

Last summer, workers arrived at S.I.M Warehouse and Logistics Company on Shaw Lane Industrial Estate off the M18 to find the pony looking bewildered. Surrounded by a busy gym, retail and fast-food traffic, it was certainly no place for a pony.

They created a holding pen and gave him a bucket of water before calling the Bransby Horses Welfare Phone Line for advice.

Welfare Manager, Rachel Jenkinson, said: "When we arrived we knew we would have to remove him from where he was as it was not a safe environment for him, mainly due to the high volume of lorries and trucks entering and leaving the facility.

"We knew we would have to remove him from where he was as it was not a safe environment for him."

“As we are not allowed by law to take any animal without the owner’s consent, we supported the landowner with temporary boarding whilst an Abandonment Notice ran due to the danger posed. This meant we were then able to take the pony to safety for the duration of the notice, in the hope an owner would come forward and claim him.”

An Abandonment Notice is part of the Control of Horses Act and involves a notice being clearly displayed where a horse has been taken from, informing the owner to contact the police and provide proof of ownership.

In this case, the poor, confused pony was not microchipped and his owner could not be traced. As he was now in the best place, he was immediately signed over to Bransby Horses so that he could receive the love, care and attention he deserved.

Since his arrival, the pony, who has been named Simmy after the company that found him, has received veterinary and farriery treatment and is enjoying life in the safe surroundings of Bransby Horses – a far cry from the dangerous industrial estate he was found on.

Simmy stands around 12 hands high, is dark grey and has a very friendly nature. It is hoped he may be rehomed through our Perfect Partner rehoming scheme once he is ready to make space for us to rescue more abandoned equines, just like him.

Beating the Odds to Become Champions

If you or a friend are interested in rehoming any of our rescued ponies, we have many awaiting a forever home where they can live out their lives in the loving care of a fosterer. See our website for more details.

A little girl who had a difficult start has achieved the most amazing success with her Bransby Horses' rescue pony (and best friend), Skip.

Seven-year-old Peyton Keir was given a less than 50 per cent chance of survival when she was born prematurely. At around the same time, her pony Skip was also born against the odds, to a mare rescued by Bransby Horses.

The pair met a few years later when mum, Rebecca Cutts, decided to apply to our Perfect Partner rehoming scheme.

She said: "We took Skip on just to have some fun with."

Mum took Skip and Peyton to their first shows early on, strengthening their relationship with new experiences. Skip and his young jockey rose to the challenge.

Rebecca said: "Skip won his first show and of course I was in tears. I was so proud of them both. It wasn't something we ever expected when we decided to get a pony. In fact, he was winning from day one, so at the end of the summer we decided to go bigger and have a go at the Traditional of the Year Show."

Amazingly, Peyton and Skip came first at this one too, beating a 10-competitor strong field, putting them in contention for the 'Supreme' title.

Rebecca said Skip took it all in his stride when they walked into the arena a second time, adding: "They were playing 'We are the Champions' by Queen, so it felt emotional from the start. I looked around at the competition and thought we had no chance but, after we trotted him round and lined-up, we heard over the loud speaker: 'Champion and the Traditional Best Lead Rein of the Year 2023 goes to number 260, Peyton and Bransby Skip'.

"We are and were so grateful to Bransby Horses for giving us such an amazing opportunity."

"I couldn't believe it; I had tears streaming down my face and poor Peyton was just in shock – she couldn't believe it either. It was one of the best and proudest moments of my life. We are and were so grateful to Bransby Horses for giving us such an amazing opportunity."

Bransby Skip has been spoilt rotten with treats and hugs ever since, and Peyton is looking forward to another year competing with her pony.

A man, identified as Field Officer Kris Walker, stands in a snowy field between two light-colored ponies. He is wearing a dark blue jacket, a black helmet, and dark trousers. The ponies are light-colored with long, shaggy manes and are wearing halters. The background shows a fence and trees in the distance. The scene is set in a snowy environment, with snow falling around the man and ponies.

Alone and unloved PONIES RESCUED FROM THE BRINK

Just one week before Christmas, Bransby Horses rescued a mare and her foal who had been abandoned in Flamborough, East Yorkshire.

Snow Bunting and her foal Puffin, were part of a herd spotted by Humberside Police who called our Welfare Phone Line concerned no one had visited them for months.

Upon arrival our Field Officer, Kris Walker, said: "There were just two horses when I arrived, a mare and foal. I was quite concerned about the foal as he was very lethargic and depressed. I wasn't sure if he was suckling either, so there was a possibility he might not have been the mare's foal.

"I monitored them daily and it soon became clear they were on their own and we would need to do something if these ponies were going to have any chance of survival."

Kris worked tirelessly alongside the police, RSPCA and a vet to secure permission to bring them to safety at Bransby Horses. They were both very thin, in poor condition and in desperate need of food and veterinary attention.

Since their arrival, mother and son (now named Snow Bunting and Puffin), were treated for worms and malnourishment. Puffin has improved daily; he is still very thin but is now suckling from his mother. It is hoped they will make a full recovery, but it is still too early to know for sure.

All efforts were made to trace an owner following an Abandonment Notice, but as no one came forward to claim them, they have now been signed over into the ownership of Bransby Horses where they will have a home forever.

Snow Bunting and Puffin's story is just one example of what we can do with your support.

Legacies – also known as a gift in your Will – represent 69 per cent of our yearly income and provide funding for three in four horses in our care. Snow Bunting and Puffin's story shows the difference that leaving a legacy can do to fund our welfare work. Every legacy has an impact – giving horses who would otherwise be forgotten, a second chance to live and be loved.

Executive Director of Equine Welfare Emma Carter said: "From our Field Officers investigating reports of neglect and abandonment, to our Rehoming Team placing our rehabilitated and healthy equines in their loving homes – legacies provide the essential funds for our daily activities."

Our free Will writing service is provided by Bequeathed and is available to our supporters and their families, regardless of whether you choose to create a legacy for Bransby Horses. Together, we can transform the lives of equines.

At 6 months old Puffin weighed 9st 9lbs and his body condition score was 1.5 out of 5. We would expect him to weigh 11st 8lbs for his age in good condition.

To find out more, request a free legacy pack on your order form or by calling our friendly team on 01427 788 464. You can also visit our website.

We suspect that Rex may never have seen a farrier in his lifetime due to the severity of his condition

Concerning Number of Hoof Related Neglect Cases

In 2023 the charity saw a concerning number of serious neglect cases involving horses not receiving the most basic hoof care. More than half of these cases resulted in the animals in question having to be put to sleep.

In the vast majority of welfare cases, the most significant reason given for this was financial constraints and horses being difficult to handle. Also, it has been found that a lack of owner knowledge on the subject of hoof care can contribute to hoof care falling below the basic acceptable level of care, causing unnecessary suffering as stated in the Animal Welfare Act 2006.

Back in January 2023, our first call of the year involved two young colt cobs abandoned in an open field.

Both ponies were very wary and challenging to handle with extremely overgrown hooves. We suspect they may have never seen a farrier in their lifetime due to the severity of their condition.

In October we took in two ponies after the owner realised they could not provide the urgent care they needed. After a full assessment from our vets and farrier, the internal damage to the hoof structures, ligaments and tendons was found to be severe and irreversible. Sadly, because of the damage already caused and to prevent any further suffering, the only viable option was to put them to sleep.

Welfare Manager, Rachel Jenkinson, said: "Four serious cases involving foot neglect is unprecedented for us. We would expect to see one severe case every few years but never this many in less than 12 months.

"We are working hard to develop relationships with other professionals and businesses to raise awareness of how we can support them with any welfare concerns they may see. Bransby Horses prides itself on being non-judgemental and all calls to us can be made in confidence. Our priority is to work with owners to safeguard the welfare of the equine."

This type of welfare concern can so easily be prevented with regular farrier visits (every 6-8 weeks is recommended) and forms part of the basic care equines need throughout their lives.

Rachel continued: "It is not just the long foot growth that is the problem, it is the unseen damage to the internal structures of the foot, that often means these horses will need pain management for the remainder of their lives."

After a full assessment from our experts, the internal damage to the hoof structures, ligaments and tendons in these equines was found to be too severe and irreversible

Bransby Horses is here to help. For anyone concerned about an animal or can foresee a problem arising, please contact us or put the owner in touch with us on 01427 787369 or welfare@bransbyhorses.co.uk

Get Your Needles Clicking For Competition Time

Want to start knitting for Bransby Horses? Now is the time to put your nimble fingers to work to bring Pudding, our lovable mascot to life with a fun competition.

The Pudding Knitting Competition is not your average knitting event - it is a fun and creative way to raise money for Bransby Horses. By participating, you can make a meaningful difference in the lives of vulnerable horses by knitting as many Pudding toys as you can to be used to raise funds for the charity.

Competition Details

To enter the competition, simply knit your version of Pudding by following the knitting pattern provided on our website or by contacting us (add to your order form). Knitted Pudding entries will be sold in our shop and the proceeds will go directly to supporting our work.

While there are no strict rules on design, you can take inspiration from our two fantastic Pudding books. These books are filled with imaginative and whimsical images, perfect for creating your tiny Pudding pony.

Once your creation is complete, we invite you to submit your knitted masterpiece to be judged in our competition. Please package your Pudding securely and include your name, supporter number (if you have one) and contact information. Please check the weight of your parcel to ensure it has the correct postage to arrive safely.

You can send your entry to the following address:

Bransby Horses
Marketing Team, Bransby House,
Bransby, Lincoln LN1 2PH

*Closing date for all entries is

All Pudding knitting competition entries will be judged based on creativity, craftsmanship and how well your creation embodies the spirit of Pudding and her friends. Extra points will be awarded for incorporating inspiration from the recommended books.

The winners of the competition will be contacted directly by Bransby Horses. We will also feature the winner on our website and social media channels.

Let's knit our way to a brighter future for horses in need and give them the care and love they deserve.

Oliver's Guardian Angel

Oliver is now receiving the specialist care he needs

Buying a horse is rarely straight forward and as many equestrians will testify, it can be an emotional rollercoaster looking for 'the one'. For experienced horse woman Ellie Haynes, it was particularly difficult.

Responding to an advert for a safe hacking pony for her mother, Ellie arrived to view a pony who sounded perfect from the advert and conversations she'd had with the seller. On first look the 14 hands high black gelding was friendly and looked to be in good condition, however his legs were in a terrible state – swollen, sore and in desperate need of veterinary attention.

Ellie said: "I was told they had owned him all his life and were only selling because the owner was pregnant, but when I got there, it was apparent that just wasn't the case.

"There was no definition to his legs from the knee to the pastern (part of the leg of a horse between the fetlock and the top of the hoof) – it was awful. There were so many lumps and bumps on them they looked like onion bhajis. His feet hadn't been trimmed by a trained farrier and were so tall he looked like he was on stilts.

"I bought him there and then – I just couldn't leave him."

Ellie paid the full asking price, thinking he would make a full recovery with the correct veterinary attention, but over £1,000 in veterinary bills later, she was forced to rethink.

"We got to a point where we realised Oliver needed more than I could give him. So, I called Bransby Horses and they were just amazing."

Oliver came into the care of Bransby Horses after we discovered he was suffering from Chronic Progressive Lymphedema (CPL) in all four limbs, which is a serious inflammatory skin condition. His front incisor teeth were also worn down to stubs, which we suspect was caused by living on concrete, forcing poor Oliver to eat grass that had been growing sparsely through the cracks.

Oliver is now safe thanks to Ellie's kindness and he's receiving the specialist care he needs, with a bespoke medical plan, including ongoing treatment for his CPL, which is a debilitating and sometimes life-limiting condition.

Thanks to you, we were able to help Ellie and Oliver and drastically improve his quality of life.

Small, regular gifts go a long way – a direct debit of £5 a month will help us to be there for owners and their equines, just like Ellie and Oliver.
